

IVP and CAPS Continue Partnership with Three New Innovative Books

InterVarsity Press (IVP), along with the Christian Association of Psychological Studies (CAPS), is releasing three new ground-breaking books this spring that will further the development of psychology and counseling students, practitioners and professors.

These new books address topics of perennial discussion within the field of psychology that are not often considered or taught from an explicitly Christian perspective. Sexuality and Sex Therapy, Christianity and Developmental Psychology and Christianity and Psychoanalysis will examine how Christianity interacts with human development, sexuality and experience while opening up new ways of thinking and approaching these key topics.

These works, meant to be used in both academic study and clinical practice, will help further the goals of both IVP and CAPS to integrate Christian spirituality with academic excellence.

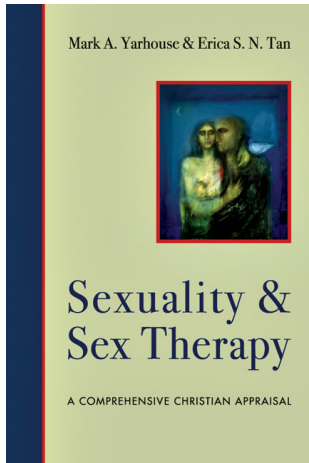

"IVP's partnership with CAPS is an exciting opportunity to work at the cutting-edge of Christian psychological research," says David Congdon, associate editor of academic books. "The explosion of involvement in the field of psychology has been one of the most remarkable examples of Christians addressing the 'scandal of the evangelical mind.' The authors of our CAPS books are exploring new conversations and new areas of integration, which are academically rigorous, clinically tested and theologically minded. We are thrilled to be a partner in the publication of works that will contribute to human well-being and the flourishing of God's kingdom."

CAPS, the largest nonprofit association of Christians in counseling and the behavioral sciences, began their publishing partnership with IVP in 2005 with the release of Modern Psychopathologies: A Comprehensive Christian Appraisal, by Mark A. Yarhouse, Richard E. Butman and Barrett W. McRay. When first published, Modern Psychopathologies received accolades from practitioners and professors, with Les Parrott (author of Counseling and Psychotherapy) writing, "Finally! A comprehensive Christian perspective on abnormal psychology. This book is grounded, insightful, biblical, practical, accessible – and long overdue. Everyone interested in exploring psychopathology from a Christian worldview will relish reading this book."

Since then IVP and CAPS have published 13 more books, both at the clinical counseling and theoretical research level. Topics covered include ethics, couples and family counseling, evidence-based practices, trauma, social psychology and several integration books looking at the field as a whole. CAPS authors and editors have included some of the field's forefront researchers and practitioners, including: Jamie D. Aten, Virginia Todd Holeman, Stanton L.
